

School District Looks At New Building Site Located in Town

by Jon Thompson

The Crawford AuSable School Board is considering a bond proposal to build a new middle school at the football field site in town.

Superintendent Kent Reynolds was directed by a consensus of the board to make a program budget for a separate building at the site. The school would house 600 students grades 5-8 and be located as far away as possible from the Grayling Elementary, Reynolds said.

The school district was trying to save money by attaching the new middle school to the high school and sharing some facilities, he said.

"We realize now the overwhelming support to have a building in town," Reynolds said.

Reynolds, along with Kathleen Burkley and Robert Smock, Jr., co-chairpersons for the previous bond issue, recommended the board place the new building proposal on the ballot for October 1, 1984. The board will make a decision about the proposal at their July 9th regular meeting.

Reynolds listed four major reasons for the June 11 defeat of a proposal attaching a new middle school to the high school. 1) A number of people desired an in-town location. 2) Many people were concerned about possible mixing of high school and middle school students. 3) A number of people did not want to vote to increase taxes whether they felt they could afford the increase or not. Reynolds said schools continue to bear the brunt of the taxpayer revolt because school issues are one of the few tax issues local voters have an opportunity to decide. 4) The efforts of the opposition to confuse voters were successful in some cases with the erroneous claim that taxes might increase two or three times due to inflation should the bond proposal pass. Inflation would in fact reduce the cost of the bond issue to the individual taxpayer, Reynolds said. As total equalized values increase, the amount of millage required to pay off the bond issue decreases.

Gas Theft Costs Schools $10,000

A thief stealing gas from the Grayling High School tank left a pump on spilling about 900 gallons of gasoline. Nearly 540 yards of sand and gravel contaminated with gasoline were removed under DNR direction and trucked to a clay-lined landfill. The cost of removing and transporting the soil along with replacing gravel and dirt at the site is estimated at $10,000.

Sheriff deputies say someone climbed the fence at the high school bus corral and broke into a driver education car early Monday morning, June 18. The thief took a jack out of the car and used it to break off pump handle brackets and locks. The gasoline hoses were then fed through the fence and the pumps were turned on. A 10,000 gallon leaded gas tank was empty but the 2,000 gallon unleaded gas tank was nearly full. A driver education teacher discovered the running pump at 5:45 a.m. and shut it off saving more than a 1,000 gallons.

Clear fingerprints were lifted from the driver education car and the sheriff department have suspects in the case.

Commissioner Welser Objects To More Pay for Extra Work

BY Jon Thompson

County commissioner Don Welser voted against workers in two county offices receiving more pay for additional work.

On June 12 Welser voted against allowing Crawford County Housing Rehabilitation and Community Development Office workers to collect administrative funds for a rental rehabilitation project involving a $56,000 Michigan Dept. of Commerce grant, $56,000 in matching funds, and $50,000 in housing rehabilitation funds.

The county board voted 6-1 to let three county workers collect $8,000 in funds set aside by the Michigan Dept. of Commerce to pay for administering the project.

"Seems like an awful high amount to administer a project," said Welser. "I think that's way too much money."

The director will receive $345, the inspector $2310, and the secretary $2310 for one year only while administering the project.

Commissioner Larry Mattis said the extra pay for one year is for the extra work the project will create for the office. He said they're expecting a flood of applicants and there are no provisions for paying overtime for the workers.

Commission Chairwoman Jeannette Kitchen said the three workers will be working a lot more hours than their usual 35-hour week on this project including overtime and Saturdays.

"This money is set aside for administrative fees and can't be spent in any other way," she said.

"We take it or we don't get it," Commissioner John Miller said. "That's the way all grants work."

Miller said the $8000 was a low amount when you compare it with 10 percent usually given to grant writers plus administrative fees of 10 to 15 percent on top of that.

The administrative fees include everything from on-site inspections to handling individual requests and paperwork, said Commissioner Mary Harland. She said the work of the housing rehabilitation and community development office is visible in our area.

"All you have to do is take a walk or drive around this city and you will see the improvement — I have seen the improvement," she said.

She also said that office has helped the county write other grants and helped in other areas that are not their job duties.

Welser said he didn't think the work load could increase that much because projects have to range from $1000 to $5000 of grant money with the landlord matching the funds. He said 11 projects could eat up all the grant money.

"Why should they get extra money when we're paying them to do this kind of work anyways?" he said.

Welser also objected to the county treasurer office receiving extra pay for handling the summer taxes for Lovells Twp. Lovells Twp. does not want to collect summer school taxes this year and the school contracted with the county to have the treasurer's office perform the work.

The treasurer will be paid up to $1000 and the two clerks up to $500 each by a special fund paid into by the school district.

Welser said the two arrangements are setting a dangerous precedence that could cause problems in the future. He said it may get so bad that if a secretary is asked to type a letter she didn't have to type the week before, she might ask for extra pay.

The county board approved the tax collection arrangement June 7 by a 6-1 vote. Kitchen said all of the townships pay their treasurers extra for collecting summer taxes and Roscommon County hired one full-time worker to handle the summer tax collections.

Lovells Twp. has 2120 parcels on their tax rolls and the county treasurer's office will be handling the Lovells tax roll during regular working hours. The county treasurer's office also currently handles delinquent taxes from 1981, 1982, and summer and winter of 1983 for all six townships and the city. All the cost for the mailing and handling of the Lovells tax roll will be paid by the special fund paid into by the school district.

The county doesn't contribute any money toward the extra pay for either office.

Local Man Talked Down from Windmill

A 37-year-old local man was charged with being drunk and disorderly Friday night, June 22, after climbing to the top of the Chief Shoppenagons windmill. Grayling City Policeman Tom Brooks said the man had climbed to the top about 10 p.m. and was spinning the windmill propellers and the weather vane. Brooks said the man had climbed down halfway and then returned to the top three different times when the man's wife and brother requested Grayling City Policeman Harold Hatfield be called in because the man was on good terms with him. Hatfield was called in from off duty and the man came down the windmill to talk to him.

Brooks said the windmill climber was wearing cowboy boots with smooth soles and could have slipped at any time. Grayling City Police would not release the man's name.

New Commission on Aging Board Working on Lease Agreement with Grayling Housing Commission

by Jon Thompson

The newly formed Commission on Aging board is working on a lease arrangement to rent space at the Grayling Housing Commission project.

Mary Harland, working as interim project manager for the Commission on Aging, said they hope to present a lease offer to the Grayling Housing Commission within 30 days to rent less space there than previously used by Commission on Aging programs.

If the Grayling Housing Commission approved the lease arrangement, it will be sent to HUD for approval.

In an update of other Commission on Aging news, Harland told the county board of commissioners at the regular meeting Monday, June 25, they will be advertising for a project manager and hope to have one on board by October 1.

She said they plan on hiring a new cook this week and have been providing training for the new board members and employees. The travel program for seniors has been cut extensively for now, but other programs such as the Meals on Wheels, Vial of Life, blood pressure, homemakers, and satellite programs in Frederic, Lovells, and Maple Forest continue.

Harland said the monthly bulletin will again be printed and she said there is a good positive outlook about programs.

Chairwoman Jeannette Kitchen commended Harland and Commission on Aging board members John Miller and Larry Mattis for their work, and she asked Commissioner Bud Halstead to help the Grayling Housing Commission and the Commission on Aging sort out files at the project site.

Harland also reported the board is working on employee policies and the board adopted the state code of ethics to work under. The board is also considering a Sunday meal and a dinner program.

The Commission on Aging board also changed the by-laws to add four citizens to the board. The board hasn't appointed the additional members yet.

In her report, Harland also said the Commission on Aging won't be able to survive without a renewal of the half mill. She said the county doesn't have the money to fund the commission and the commission will now be paying for rent, insurance, and several other things it never had to pay before.

Grayling Twp. Plans 3 Major Road Projects

The Grayling Township Board, following public hearings held June 12, has approved three road blacktopping programs to start in 1984.

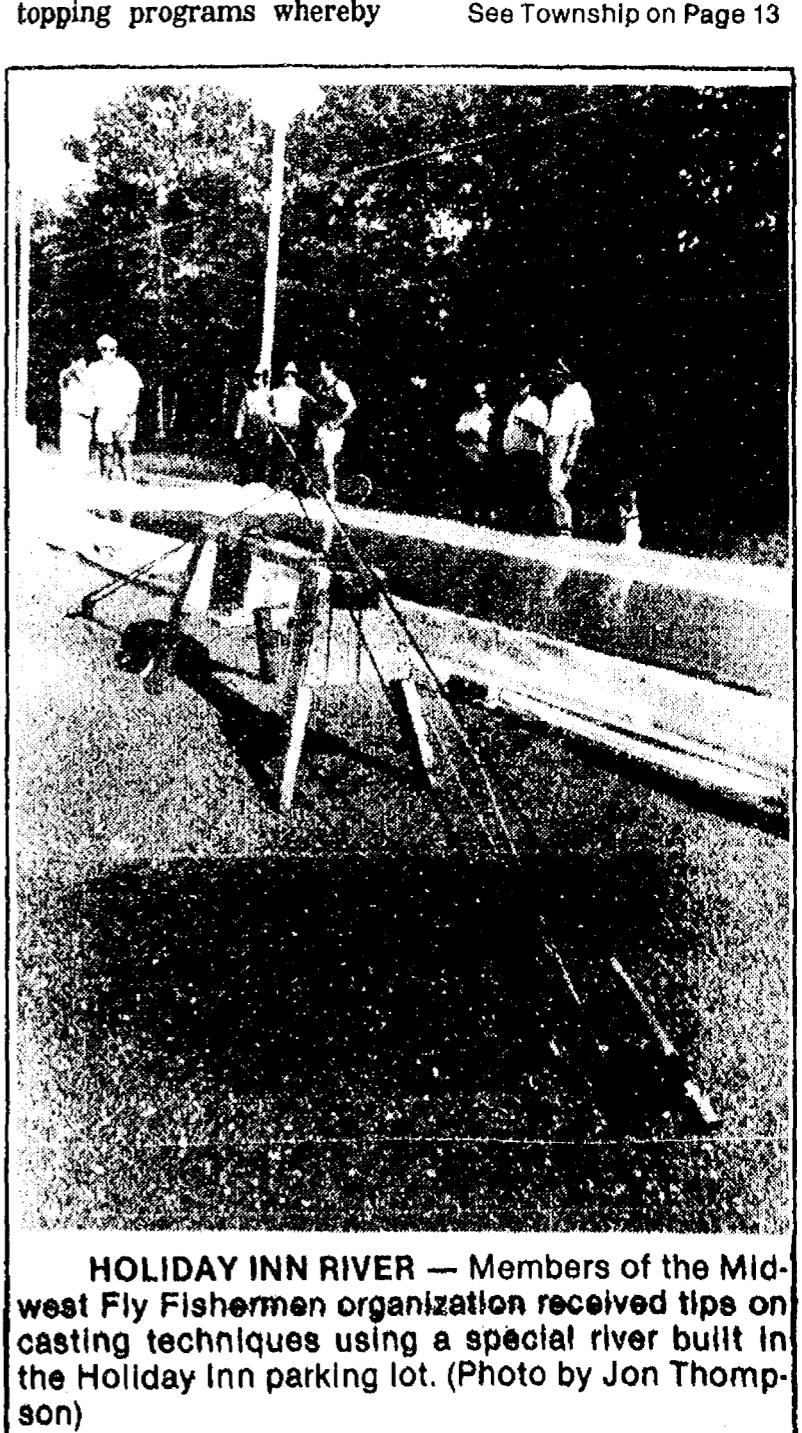

One road improvement program will extend over a period of 4 years. The road projects are the result of cooperation between the Crawford County Road Commission, Grayling Township and property owners along the roads being improved as well as owners who use those roads for access to their property.

The programs consist of Karen Road, Crawford Rd., Spruce Street, Cedar Street and Richard Road in Karen Woods Subdivision; Beaver Island Road in Section 8, T26N, R3W, and a projected 4-year program for approximately 4.4 miles of Jones Lake Road and approximately .8 of a mile of Pines Road will start in 1984.

The 4-year project will start at the intersection of Jones Lake and Wilcox Bridge Roads with 1.1 miles scheduled for 1984. The Jones Lake portion of the project will go northeasterly to its intersection with the E & W 1/4 line of Section 13, T27N, R3W. The Pines Road portion will run from the intersection of Pines Road and Jones Lake Road northerly to the N section line of Section 23, T27N, R3W.

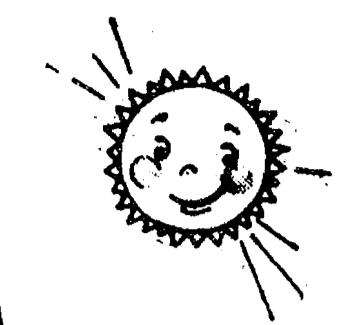

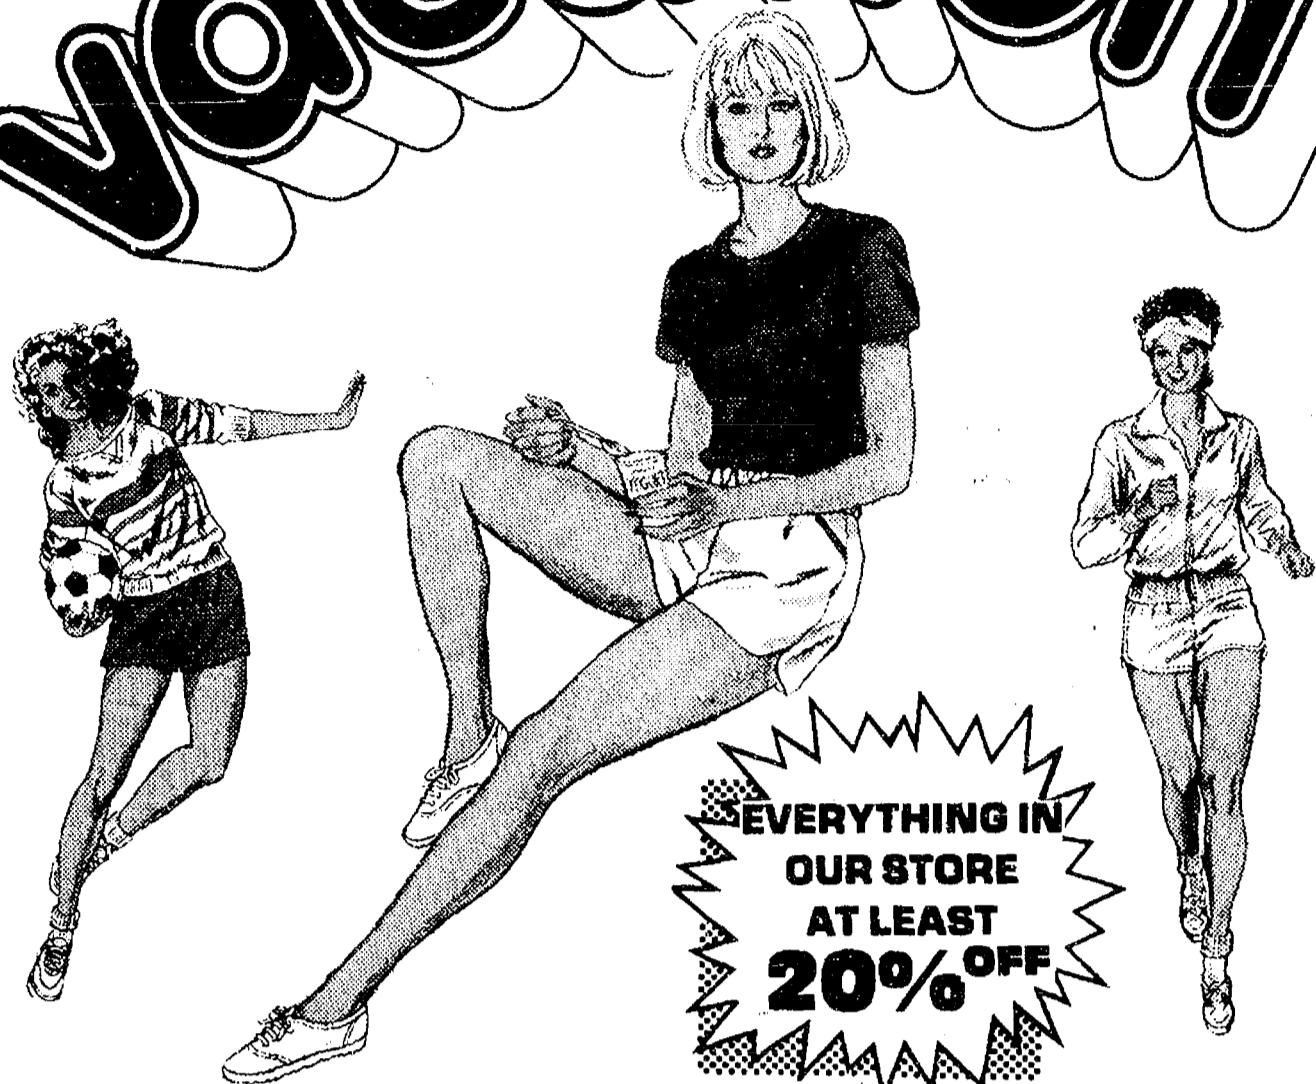

Property owners in the Jones Lake area petitioned the Township Board in the Fall of 1982 for road improvements. Since that time the Township has worked to develop a program affordable to all parties. The Karen Woods project came about by a petition from property owners along Karen Road. As a result of that petition the Township sent out questionnaires to other owners in the Karen Woods area and was able to expand the project to include the other streets mentioned. The Beaver Island Road project was also the result of a petition by property owners for road improvement.

The Grayling Township Board has a policy for blacktopping programs whereby See Township on Page 13

From Our Corner...

We took advantage of a nice weekend and spent the time in Traverse City with Toni, T.J. and Stefany, and now we're behind the eight ball as far as our corner is concerned...it seems that if we don't get the lions share of it done on Sunday we have a rough time on Monday due to so many interruptions...while we are trying to get started on this week's efforts, we are wondering how we will make out next week as we plan on spending Sunday at a family get together at Lake Louise near Johannesburg at our brother Svend's cottage...this was sort of gotten together so our T.C. family could get to see everyone before they make their move to the Buckeye State, which is planned around the middle of July...next week we are going to have to come up with some sort of a column on Saturday as the Avalanche is going to be printed on Tuesday next week, and that will give our staff just Monday to put the finishing touches on the paper, and the way Mondays are normally we expect a hectic day...

To help out this week we are going to reprint a piece that was sent to us by Bud Joyce, and is from the June 18th Wall Street Journal...we thought it was quite cute, so will pass it on...

Telephone customers have been going through some Kafkaesque experiences lately, and they blame their trials on the metamorphosis of American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Kafka doesn't always come to mind. Some phone users' troubles are more reminiscent of the Marx Brothers. A case in point is the saga of James Vinick, a stockbroker in Springfield, Mass., who had requested a credit card from New England Telephone Co.

On May 2, Mr. Vinick received in his home mail not one but 246 AT&T credit cards, each with his name and a different telephone number. Not one of the numbers was his.

Mr. Vinick thought it was a joke until he telephoned AT&T the next day to decline the generosity. "The guy said I got good news and bad news for you," Mr. Vinick recalled. The good news was that AT&T already knew of the card deluge and was trying to halt it. "The bad news," Mr. Vinick says, "was that a total of 971 cards were on the way."

Warning Proves True

Sure enough. Mr. Vinick received the rest of the load — 725 more cards — on May 11. An AT&T official picked up all 971 at Mr. Vinick's office the following week. "They never did tell me what happened to cause this," Mr. Vinick says.

The story didn't end there. In late May, Mr. Vinick finally received the one card he had asked for. "To add insult to injury," he says, "they misspelled my name."

AT&T also finally canceled the 971 credit cards. Predictably, says Mr. Vinick, the company also canceled his proper card.

An AT&T spokesman in Boston says, "There obviously was a distribution error." And, he adds, "we certainly want to satisfy Mr. Vinick eventually."

With that help we can start working on pages, and will bid T.J., Stefany and Amber goodnight, and to all of our readers, don't forget, mark your calendar and come to Grayling Saturday, July 7th, for a 4th of July celebration with fireworks and lots of fun...

The Bible Speaks

From Calvary Baptist Church

BIBLE CHRISTIANITY UNDER ATTACK

The Miskito Indians who fled from Nicaraguan soldiers into safety in Honduras, tell us of shocking stories of religious persecution over their faith. The Marxist-dominated Sandinista government views these Christians as a threat to the progress of their left-wing social reforms. The Miskito Indians were evangelized by Moravian missionaries from Europe in the 19th century. Some 250 of their Christian leaders were arrested in 1981, with some sentenced to prison for up to 30 years. A Miskito mother told how the Sandinista soldiers opened fire on her family as they crossed the Coco River into Honduras. She was able to save one of her children while she watched her husband and other children shot down. They tell the sad story of how their homes and churches were torched, and their possessions destroyed.

Many of you have read or seen on television the growing number of priests and laymen who are fighting as Marxists under the banner of Christianity. Since the area religion is predominately Roman Catholic, it has become common to see soldiers on both sides fighting in the name of Christianity.

Treasury Reports Property Tax Hikes Slowing

The smallest percentage increase and smallest dollar increase in property tax revenues since 1940 and 1950, respectively, occurred in 1983, according to a recent report by the Department of Treasury's Taxation and Economic Policy Office.

Property tax collections for 1983 increased only .3 percent, or $15 million, over those of 1982.

The report, entitled "Property Taxes in Michigan: Rates, Revenue and Relief," noted the average 1983 property tax rate was 52.77 mills, up from 52.71 mills in 1982, but under the prevailing millage rates from 1976 to 1981 during which the millage rate peaked at 52.89 mills.

The total 1983 state equalized valuation was reported at $100.2 billion, an increase of 1.9 percent over 1982.

The 1983 SEV of residential property increased by 1.8 percent over the previous year.

In the area of property tax credits for 1982, the latest year for which data is complete, over 1.5 million state residents received property tax credits.

The $656.4 million in credits was 19.2 percent of the total residential and agricultural property taxes for the year in Michigan.

The report further showed the fastest growing segment of Michigan's property tax relief program is the credit approved under the Farm-land Preservation Act.

Total farmland preservation tax credits have increased by 50 percent or more each year since the beginning of the program when it was enacted in 1974.

The main purpose of the 10 month (September-July) program is to teach students the process of state government.

Pat Englehard, Roscommon High School, concerning the implementation of the Youth in Government program in those schools.

As the major means of philanthropy for Weyerhaeuser Company, the Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation has approved a 1984 budget of more than $3.5 million, a 4.3 percent increase from 1983. Funds for 1984 grants to communities where Weyerhaeuser has facilities will grow by an estimated 12 percent, said Mary Hall, vice president - corporate contributions. These programs will place greater emphasis on industry-related issues, as well as maintenance of scholarships to help send 27 Gaylord High School students to the 36th Annual State YMCA Youth in Government program held in Lansing, Michigan from March 28 to March 31, 1984. In addition, part of the grant will help support the National Youth Governor/Chief Justice Conference and an Adult Leadership Conference.

The Legislature has taken final action to place on the November general election ballot a proposal asking Michigan voters whether the state's land acquisition trust fund should be given constitutional protection.

The proposal, if approved by the voters, would create a Natural Resources Trust Fund, which would be a successor to the current Kammer Recreational Land Acquisition Trust Fund which was created by statute in 1976.

The resolution, approved by the Legislature to place the question before the voters, would provide constitutional protections of the fund created from royalties and other money received by the state under leases permitting the extraction of minerals, coals, oil, gas and other non-renewable resources from state-owned lands.

The proposal places a $200 million cap on the principal in the fund but authorizes the Legislature by a three-fourths vote to increase that cap as future Legislatures may see fit.

The current fund has been the depository for royalties since its inception, but the fund has been "raided" by acts of the Legislature to meet past and present budgetary needs.

The ballot proposal would remove the fund as a source to be used for other purposes besides acquisition of land or making improvements to such land to be held in trust for future generations as a result of expending non-renewable resources.

By Cpl. Brian Blodgett

Camp Grayling, Michigan (20 June 84) — Not since the Japanese invaded the Aleutian Islands in World War II has the United States Army been involved in any hostile action on any U.S. Territory. Members of Company B, 168th Infantry Battalion, located in both Marvsville and Delaware, are currently stationed at Camp Grayling, Michigan preparing for any such repeated incident.

Company B, along with the rest of the 73rd Infantry Brigade, is taking part in a simulated Soviet invasion from southern Canada. The members of this unit are very excited about the training, which includes nine days out in the woods.

"I like being out in the field," said Sergeant Donald Seitz. "This is the true infantry, walking up and down hills, setting up defensive fighting positions, and going out on patrols. This is what I joined for."

One of the most important tasks that an infantryman will ever do, and one that may save his life in a real combat situation, is digging defensive fighting positions. Since most of the time an infantry unit is in one specific area for a number of days, these fighting positions, or foxholes as they are usually called, become very elaborate with excellent camouflage and enough overhead cover to take a direct hit from an enemy mortar. No matter how beautiful and elaborate these foxholes become, they all begin as just a plain ordinary hole in the ground.

This hole is dug to shoulder depth and is 6-10 feet wide. It will accommodate two soldiers and all of their gear. These fighting positions are dug with the small collapsible army shovels that every soldier carries. Using this tool, a two-man team can usually get a fairly good fighting position dug in under two hours.

The simple hole is no where near complete, however, until it has overhead cover and camouflage. The overhead cover, usually made of thick logs covered by packed dirt, and the camouflage which will conceal the positions from the enemy will take several more hours to complete.

When the fighting position is finished it will be indistinguishable from the surrounding area. It may be their home for a day or for a week. It may save their lives someday.

"Digging a foxhole is hard and it really wears you out," said Specialist 4 Johnathan Johnston, "but looking at the finished product makes you feel happy and proud. I don't care if I have to leave it tomorrow, as long as I know that it would have protected me for one night, be it from the enemy or just the weather."

Engineers Stress Training Realism

By Sgt. Raymond Broz

Bravo Company's troops were spread thin across the green forest acres of Camp Grayling. Most were out on training missions, others on special projects or in support of nearby 16th Engineer Brigade HQ. The unit command post (CP), by the shore of Howe's Lake, was sparsely populated, but busy.

Intelligence reports cautioned that the unit could expect a chemical attack around noon — three hours away. Meanwhile, the CP was being surrounded by extra layers of barbed wire and the troops were being progressively readied for the expected assault.

It was about 9:45 that morning when a machine gun on the north perimeter opened fire. The commander, 1st Lt. David Donaldson shouted to his radio switchboard operator, "Get me a report fast!"

Suddenly they heard a "poof" and a white cloud began drifting in from the perimeter. "GAS...GAS!!!" The warning was shouted. Amid the hustle and confusion an enemy soldier infiltrated and was near the CP when he was captured and led away.

Another gas grenade exploded and soon the center of the compound was a white haze. By now, most of the available soldiers, donned in protective suits and masks, were concentrated on the north-east edge of the perimeter. Within twenty minutes, two more prisoners had been captured and the attack subsided. All of the enemy soldiers had been either captured or driven back.

"We had a probe by three enemy soldiers with automatic rifles and gas grenades," said SFC Michael Foxx, summing up the action. "There were no casualties and no loss of equipment."

The unit was not so lucky the night before. Foxx said they sustained a similar attack on the north perimeter, but it was more intense and unfortunately, more successful. The casualties were five dead in that battle, including a platoon sergeant and a machine gun crew.

Just a note, during these mock-combat exercises, the bullets are blanks, the enemy soldiers are actually friendly troops in enemy uniforms and dead soldiers all come back to life when the exercise is completed. The accent may be on realism, but never at the expense of safety.

Bravo Company and the rest of the 112th Engineer Battalion will pull up their tent stakes after a few more days of training and battles, then begin the long convoy back to northeast Ohio.

AIR INSERTION — Members of C Company, 1/148th Infantry Battalion, Ohio Army National Guard, lift off for training mission at Camp Grayling. Dave Swavel.)

BRIDGE MEN — Members of Company B, 112th Engineer Battalion, Store, Ohio, prepare to build a bridge at annual training by lifting deck mounts to Howes lake in Camp Grayling, Michigan. The deck mounts which are bolted onto steel rafts, allow vehicles such as a M-880 truck or jeep to transport across water. This exercise shows guardmembers how to perfect training which they learned in books. (Ohio National Guard Photo by Sp4 Rebecca Sylh.)

Doodles From The Tall Timber

Of all the creatures inhabiting our woodlands, the Salamanders are probably the least noticed or even considered. Over the past weekend, I found a Spotted Salamander which was perhaps five inches or so long. This amphibian was what you might call a brownish-black color with a good number of bright yellow spots showing. Salamanders must stay moist or die so this specimen appeared shiny and if I had really bothered it, it would have become covered with a mucus-like substance. Its distance from water was surprising since both sexes migrate to a shallow pool or pond in the spring where mating takes place. The two hundred or so eggs hatch in two to four weeks into half-inch long larvae which, before the summer is over, transform into adults. The adults feed mainly upon insects, slugs, snails and worms. They are known to live for at least twenty-four years where they are somewhat protected.

I suspect that many persons believe Salamanders are poisonous and should be destroyed, but there is no truth in this. While they may feel moist or even slippery to the touch, they are not poisonous in any way. Considering what they feed upon, they should be thought of as being beneficial.

Troop 997 News

Troop 997 has moved! Boy Scout Troop 997 is now holding its meetings in the main lodge at Hanson Recreational Park, and is in the process of moving all of its equipment to the same location. In the near future, Howard Taylor is going to appear before the Troop Committee to discuss the activities and facilities that the park has to offer. This move should prove to be a valuable asset to both the troop, and its members.

On Thursday, June 14, members of Troop 997 helped the Crawford County Library Childrens Hour celebrate Flag Day by providing a Flag Raising and Lowering ceremony, a demonstration on how to fold the American Flag, and gave a brief history of it.

During the weekend of June 15, 16, and 17, a majority of the troop participated in a Troop campout/canoe trip, by making camp Friday and Saturday nights, and Canoeing down the Manistee River most of the day Saturday. This event will help many of the Scouts in earning various Merit Badges. Our thanks to Barry Fenn for providing a campsite.

And a word of commendation to Wayne Schoonover, who not only recently was awarded his Eagle Scout, but who has also graduated from high school at the top 10 of his class. This is something for the younger Scouts to look up to, and to aim for.

BIRTHDAY SMILES — Mimi Wilson, program director at the Grayling Health Care Center, brought smiles to children and seniors Friday with her clown costume and cheerful song and dance routines. The youngsters, from the Crawford AuSable Day Care, also entertained during the community birthday party for three seniors. A balloon launch highlighted the afternoon. (Photo by Jon Thompson)

Each project has its own characteristics and many projects require other methods than front footage to determine the property owners' share. These variations are generally worked out between the Township and those owners who attend the public hearings.

Since 1963 Grayling Township has handled more than 20 road projects through this process. In addition other projects have been accomplished which did not involve a special assessment.

—Recommended Commissioner Miller as a nominee to the Board of Directors of the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority.

—Adopted a resolution commending the Detroit Tigers for their performance and unique contribution to the revived spirit of Michigan.

—Adopted a resolution advocating a State Constitutional Amendment which would clearly define the powers of the Judicial Branch of Michigan State Government.

—Executed a lease with Flowing Wells Trout and Game Farm for fish for the Hatchery; and agreed to insure the fish for $7,500.00 per stipulation of the lease.

REPORTS AND ANNOUNCEMENTS:

—Status of the Commission on Aging was discussed with Sue Schuler of NEMCSA and C.O.A. Board Member Barb Selskey. Concern was expressed over the decline in program participation, and the Commission on Aging's lack of progress in rectifying the problems. Kitchen informed the Board that HUD may sue the Commission on Aging and its members to recover allegedly misused funds estimated in excess of $67 thousand. After much discussion, the Board scheduled a joint meeting with all parties concerned for June 7, 1984, at 1:00 p.m.

—Bruce Jones, Building & Zoning Director, discussed the electrical inspector's status with regard to personal liability insurance. A Prosecutor's opinion has indicated that he is not covered by the County. Legal counsel will be contacted.

—The Sheriff reported that ambulance equipment may be needed by next year; and that collections have improved on ambulance billings. Need for paint and repairs in the jail, and the policy of co-operation with the DNR and State Police were also discussed.

—George Rybicki reported that South Branch Township has won a case through the Tax Tribunal that should save taxpayers more than $40 thousand.

—The MAC Mental Health Committee is preparing its platform for the summer convention. Harland will attend; and will request a line of credit for expenses.

—Roads & Bridges: Special assessment districts are being created for road projects.

—CoPoCo Numbering System: The DNR maps have proven confusing as even two-track trails are delineated. The Post Master will be contacted regarding who is authorized to assign consumer grid system numbers.

—SCD: Tree planting projects are being completed.

—District Health: Complaints of animal carcasses not properly disposed of, the State Association's support of legislation requiring seat belts, brine in wells, physicals for Girl Scouts, personnel policy manuals for the District, a measles outbreak in Mancelona, ear and eye screening provided by a mobile unit in Grayling, Weyerhaeuser employees infected by bacteria from bird feces on pulp wood and changes in personnel were all topics of discussion.

—D.S.S. Economic development to stimulate employment will be pursued through the appropriate local agencies. A DSS employment program entitled M.O.S.T. and the summer youth program are underway. 80% of the clients are employable; and 110 clients are presently placed at 22 worksites. Number of clients on programs, and amount of money being distributed in food stamps was also discussed.

Chamber Chatter

By Joyce Kolka

Our great moment has arrived! We have moved into our new building with much fuss and ado. The ribbon cutting ceremony and open house was viewed by many friends and supporters of the Chamber. Our location in the city park is a beautiful and visible spot with ample parking for visitors. The office and work areas are large enough to accommodate the materials necessary for an active Chamber. It is indeed a pleasure to be here and we sincerely thank our members for making it possible. We plan to be open seven days a week during the summer, at least we'll give it a try. The hours will be Mon. thru Fri. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.; Sat. 9 a.m. - 3 p.m.; Sun. 10 a.m. - 2 p.m. We urge everyone who was unable to attend the open house to stop in at their leisure and become informed on what the Chamber has to offer.

We are approaching the "Tourist Season" in this part of the country. Although the season was identified as strictly a summer operation, it can now be considered an all year round activity. With the snowmobile and the popular cross country ski programs, the people of the cities in the metropolitan area will drive hundreds of miles to enjoy this recreation because of the nice weather. Children are out of school and more activities available for everyone. So, we notice an influx of the traveling public in our shops, restaurants, parks, streets and highways.

My point in mentioning all of this, is that those of us in business depend on the tourist trade a great deal. It's what makes our cash registers ring. But, we must also treat that tourist with kindness, courteous and intelligent answers to their questions. When a tourist asks questions about the area, activities, attractions, lodging, camping, etc. and the waitress, bartender or gas station attendant can't answer their questions, for heaven's sake call the Chamber of Commerce. We have the answers. If we don't, we'll get them. There's nothing so discouraging as to get an "I don't know" answer to a simple question such as "Where is the AuSable River"? Be smart - have the answers. The tourist will be pleased and satisfied that he stopped at your place.

In the area of Economic Development, Kirkland Community College, directed by Steve Perry is conducting our Economic Development Teamwork Workshop on Wednesday, June 27, 1984 at Grayling's Holiday Inn. The Coordinator is the University of Michigan Industrial Development Division and Institute of Science and Technology. The program is loaded with distinctive and knowledgeable professionals in the field. Twenty six counties will send representatives to the workshop. This is another opportunity for Grayling to host convention type affairs.

This week the Chamber welcomes Ole Dam Party Store into membership. The party store, located on M-72 West at the junction of 93 is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Gary McLaughlin and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Hartman. Welcome aboard, folks.

CHURCH DIRECTORY

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, MY COUNTRY!

The cynics can make a strong case against our time. Soon they'll try to prove we'd be better off living in another century.

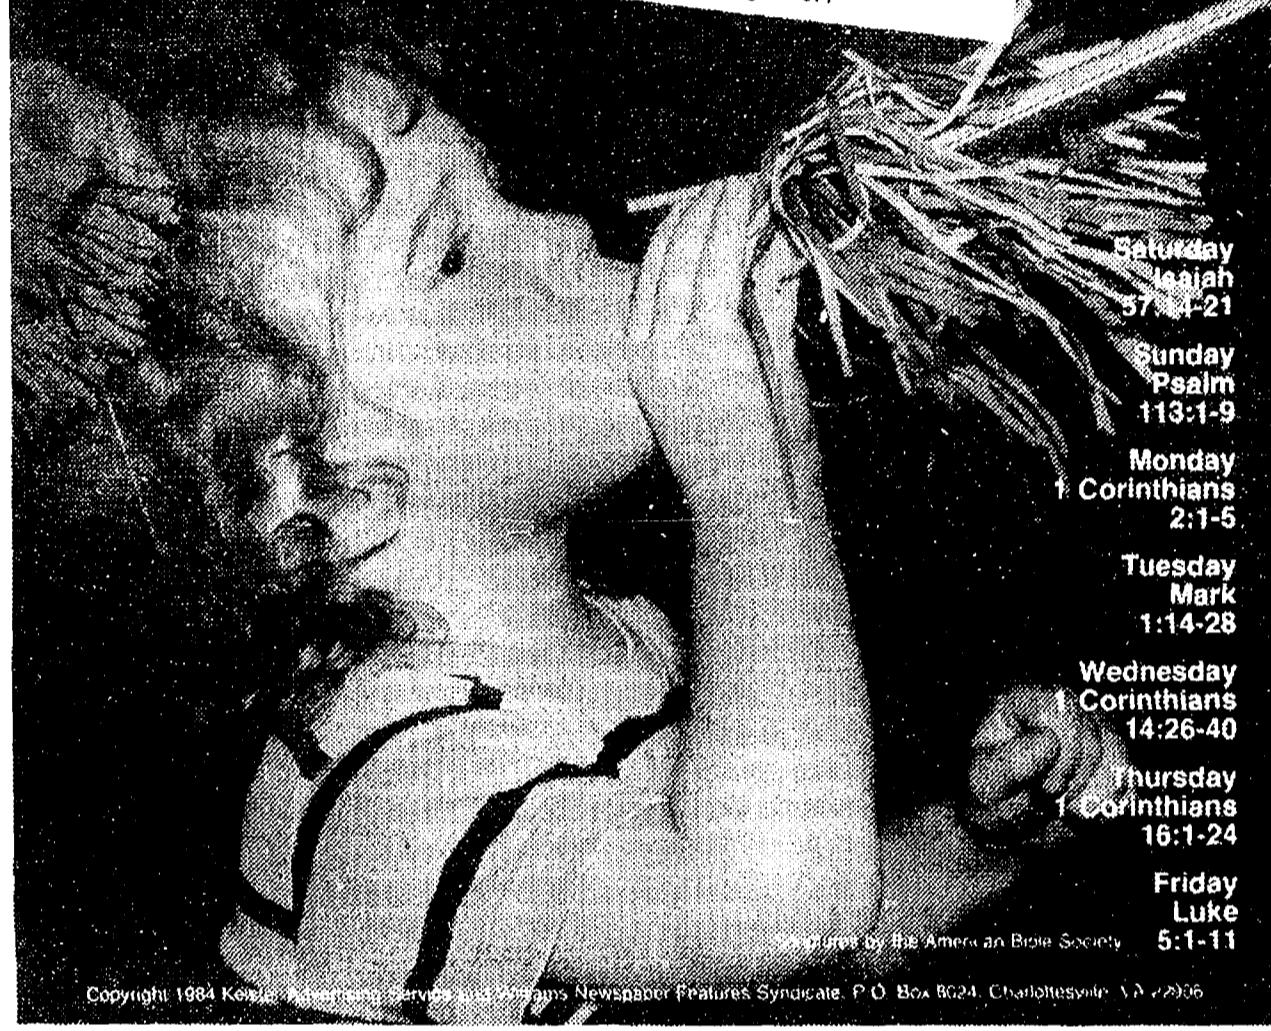

But kids still celebrate their birthdays. So does

Because, along with life and liberty, the pursuit of happiness is one of our inalienable rights. Happiness isn't a birthday party, nor a Fourth of July parade. It is really a spiritual quest - born in brotherhood, nurtured in self-control, and ultimately realized in respect for one another and for God. Because we were willing to settle for less...less we've been getting!

The Church is not immune to controversy as it tries to wrestle with the frustrations of our time. Wrestling means conflict. Not every hold deserves applause or contributes to victory.

But the Church inspires those millions of Americans whose pursuit of happiness turns humbly and confidently to that very Creator who endowed men with certain inalienable rights. He brings us together!

Now that summer is in full swing, Hanson Park is gearing up to provide the young people of the area an opportunity to have a safe and fun summer. Hanson Park is open every day from 10:00 a.m. until 9:00 p.m. with supervisors on duty to watch over the youngsters and provide equipment and materials for them to enjoy the summer with. In addition to the daily supervised playgrounds, Hanson Park will be providing a wide list of special events for area children. The first of these events will be a hot dog roast on Friday, June 29.
